

Revised Version 1.4 Introduction

The Jews refer to themselves as a light unto nations, a people who improve all countries in which they reside. Do the Jews improve the states in which they dwell? And are the Jews really 'the chosen people of God?' We hope that the reader may decide for himself using this document, which is a short history of the Jewish people [1].

Jews, despite being a small minority group, significantly impacted historical events during the 18th, 19th, and 20th centuries with ever-increasing magnitude. The text below shows that Jews have disproportionately influenced Western culture more than any other ethnic group. However, it is important to note that our writers allege no 'conspiracy' by Jews. Instead, the mounting historical examples given point toward an inborn tendency of Jews to engage in behavior which they believe will ensure their safety.

Anyone wishing to verify the information presented in this document can do so via a good Internet search engine or library.

To be sure, the Jews - a race and also a religion - have a long history. But we will be focusing on the Jews only during roughly the past 200 years. We begin their saga with the rise of the Rothschild banking family in Europe.

The Rise of the Rothschilds and International Banking

Of significance in Jewish history is how important the Rothschilds - and other Jewish bankers - were to the solidification of Jewish power in the West. A large percentage of banks in the West were originally founded by Jews, e.g. the Rothschilds, Jacob Schiff, and Paul and Max Warburg. And Meyer Amschel Rothschild and his sons virtually invented, and then dominated, modernized banking and finance. Not only did the powerful Rothschilds control banking in Europe from approximately 1815 onward, but they also purchased European news outlets - including the Reuters news agency - giving them the power to influence the opinions of millions of gentiles. Furthermore, political and social reform actions naturally require money; since they were far wealthier than even royal families - who were in fact indebted to them - the Rothschilds were in a unique position to be able to transform aspects of European society to benefit the Jewish community.

Two features remain key to the power of the international bankers. First, many bankers were/are related by marriage. By the end of the 1800s many Rothschild cousins had married. Also, many top politicians in the West were/are indebted to the international bankers for providing them with loans at critical times, such as when a Rothschild loaned Benjamin Disraeli millions of pounds so he could buy shares of stock for control of the Suez Canal area to benefit England.

Moreover, international bankers have often impacted White countries by funding various wars, such as the funding of the Japanese in the Japan/Russia war of the early 20th century. Many Western political observers assert that wars are waged for economic reasons. If so, Jews, by their domination of international banking, have been vital but unseen players in modern warfare.

The Founding of Communism

The ideology that would murder and enslave more people than any other idea in human history was crafted in the 1840s by a German Jew named Karl Marx. Like many Jews who wanted to hide within gentile society, Marx's family converted to Christianity. Marx's ideology was called communism, a social and economic system in which the government controlled all forms of property and wealth. Marx based his communism on the historic kahal, a Jewish communal living system. The kahal was essentially an early form of communism, with community needs such as food, living arrangements, and vocations allocated in a collective manner.

It should be noted by the reader that communism is, as an ideology, more severe than Nazism, its sworn enemy. As an example, in Nazi Germany a citizen could own a gun with a permit. But no citizen could, or can, own a gun in any communist country. Nazism wasn't totalitarian. It was politically authoritarian. But communism is totalitarian in that every aspect of a citizen's life is rigidly controlled. The number of people murdered by communism worldwide since 1917 approaches 100 million people - 20 million in Russia alone. That number does not include the other millions of people who were imprisoned, tortured or forced to flee their homes due to communist aggression.

The Rise of Zionism

In the late 1880s, Jews began looking for a permanent place to evade gentiles who opposed them. The place they envisioned for their exile was Palestine, portions of which Jews had occupied over 2,000 years previously. Jews began a global campaign - known as the Zionist movement - to convince the world that they were entitled to 'return' to Palestine. The leader of the Zionist movement was Theodor Herzl. Certain negative Jewish behaviors hinged on Zionism - such as actions surrounding the Balfour Declaration (see below) and the deliberate exaggeration of the severity of the Holocaust - to ensure that Jewish 'return' to Palestine. Furthermore, the state of Israel was founded upon Jewish-committed terrorism, characterized by such acts as the bombing of the King David Hotel in 1946 or the Deir Yassin massacre in 1948.

Today, Zionism - which the UN described as a form of racism in its 1975 Resolution 3379 - causes much trouble in the world, particularly in the form of the Arab/Israeli wars and ongoing violence in the Middle East. Additionally, American (read: gentile) tax dollars fund the state of Israel, which is one of the chief causes of Arab anger towards the U.S.

The Creation of the Federal Reserve Corporation

In 1913, the U.S. Congress authorized the creation of the Federal Reserve banking system, which is also known as the Federal Reserve Corporation. This private, non-governmental entity issues America's money. The Federal Reserve pays the U.S. Treasury a small fee to print 'Federal Reserve Note' currency, which is later loaned to the U.S. government.

The Federal Reserve system was created largely due to the actions of Jewish banker Paul M. Warburg.

There are several problems with the U.S. government not controlling America's money. Primarily, the money is debt money, and also fiat money - cash that is not backed by 'real' commodities such as gold or silver. It is debt money because when the U.S. government needs money - i.e., more money than the U.S. treasury receives from taxes - it borrows the cash from the Federal Reserve (such borrowing is now routine). The government then agrees to pay back the money that it borrowed from the corporation with added interest paid on the collateral for the loan (the collateral being interest-bearing government bonds). That interest - minus smaller government debts such as foreign aid - is the national, or federal, debt, or, what America owes the Federal Reserve Corporation.

The Federal Reserve also controls interest rates and the amount of money that circulates within America, giving it enormous power over the U.S. economy.

As the debt money system continues to be used, America's national debt climbs, leading to the American citizen being progressively over-taxed.

Of significance is that the leadership of the Federal Reserve and the key owners of the corporation's stock - i.e., banks - have been disproportionately Jewish. Even today, a Jewish man named Alan Greenspan heads that corporation. (How ironic that the same year that America gave up control of its money to private bankers, Canada did as well under the Bank Act of 1913. In fact, private banks control the money of almost all Western countries, and yes, those banks are very often owned or controlled by Jews).

WWI

Fact: America became involved in WWI due to pointed Jewish intervention. England was in danger of losing the war when Jews secretly approached the British government with an unusual offer: the Jews, using their powerful influence within American President Woodrow Wilson's inner circle, would persuade Wilson to enter America into the war if the British government would declare its support for the creation of a Jewish homeland in Palestine. As a result of that offer, Wilson's close Jewish advisors, such as Louis Brandeis, Bernard Baruch and Rabbi Stephen Wise, urged Wilson to aid the British war effort by committing American troops to enter WWI. Another Jew, Chaim Weizmann, was the key player on the British side of the plan to inject America into WWI.

The British government pledged its support for the creation of a Jewish state in a document that became known as the Balfour Declaration. That declaration was issued after America had entered WWI. The Balfour Declaration was written by one Jew - Leopold Amery - and edited by another Jew, Louis Brandeis, who was the first Jewish justice of the U.S. Supreme Court. The reader should be aware of the fact that WWI led directly to WWII. In fact, many people feel that WWII was merely a continuation of WWI.

'Russian' Revolution/Comintern Founded

Probably the most important event in recent history - aside from WWII - was the so-called 'Russian' Revolution, which occurred in late 1917. In that revolution, communists gained control of Russia, murdering and enslaving millions of its citizens, most of whom were gentiles. Nearly all of the top communists in Russia - first called 'Bolsheviks' but later 'Soviets' - were Jewish and not from Russian stock. Their leader, V.I. Lenin, was part-Jewish and married to a Jew. After Lenin's death, Joseph Stalin led the Soviet communists. Stalin was not Jewish but he was married to a Jew. The Russian Revolution was financed by the Jewish banker Jacob Schiff, who furnished the communists with millions of dollars.

After gaining control of Russia, the Soviets spread communism worldwide through an organ of the Soviet government called the Comintern. The Comintern sent agents around the globe to foment revolutions which, it hoped, would result in the installation of communist regimes in various countries. The Comintern was run by a Jew named Grigory Zinoviev. Because of the Comintern's actions many countries around the world were later enslaved under communist dictatorships, e.g. North Korea and Cuba. China was also communized by Jewish/Soviet emissaries, e.g. Adolf Abramovitch Joffe (aka Yoffe) and Mikhail Markovich Borodin.

It should be recognized that the mass murder that occurred in Russia from 1917 onward was carried out almost exclusively by Jews, such as Lazar Kaganovich, Leon Trotsky, Yakov Sverdlov, Yakov Yurovsky and Genrikh Yagoda. The few top Soviet officials who were not Jewish were married to Jews, for example Rykov, Molotov, Dzherzhinsky and Bukharin (not counting the previously-mentioned Lenin and Stalin). Soviet communism had racially-Jewish roots until Stalin became frustrated with their domination of the government and purged a significant number of Jews including Kamenev, Zinoviev, Radek, Yagoda, Rykov.

Of interest regarding the 'Russian' Revolution is that British leader Winston Churchill wrote a newspaper article in 1920, titled "Zionism versus Bolshevism: A Struggle for the Soul of the Jewish People," in which he echoed the later Nazis in pointing out that that revolution was led mostly by Jews. Churchill's never-mentioned article is available on the web.

The Creation of the Versailles Treaty

Critically important to modern history was the Versailles Treaty of 1919, which carved Germany into pieces just after WWI. European states wanted to punish Germany for her role in WWI and the way they did so was through that treaty. (It should be recognized that WWI was not started by Germany, as is often claimed, but by Austria-Hungary, which declared war upon Serbia in July 1914). Under the questionable Versailles Treaty, parts of Germany were given to various European countries including France, Poland, Denmark and Belgium.

Most important about the Versailles Treaty, however, was the fact that Jews were key advisors to most if not all of the top government officials who attended the peace conference which produced it. The Jew Bernard Baruch advised U.S. President Wilson at the conference, while British Prime Minister Lloyd George was advised by the Jew Phil Sassoon. And French leader Georges Clemenceau was advised by his Jewish Interior Minister Georges Mandel aka Louis Rothschild. Furthermore, Jewish leader Rabbi Stephen Wise advised U.S. president Wilson about matters surrounding the impending treaty before Wilson left America to attend the peace conference. The Versailles Treaty caused WWII to occur by default, culminating in Hitler attempting to unravel the Versailles Treaty by invading Poland in 1939. The treaty was unjust and several Western leaders admitted that it was, including British Prime Minister A. Neville Chamberlain.

The Impact of Jewish Marxists/Socialists in pre-Hitler Germany

From just after WWI until the early 1930s Germany was in severe turmoil. Among the worst of her troubles were communist revolutionaries starting riots in German cities which lasted as long as 5 days. The riots were intended to destabilize Germany as a first step towards communization of that country. Also among Germany's troubles was incredible monetary inflation.

Most of Germany's troublemaking revolutionaries were Jewish, for example Karl Radek, Kurt Eisner, and Rosa Luxemburg. In fact, those three people attempted coups in several European locations.

Furthermore, pre-Hitler - aka Weimar - Germany was run by a government which contained many Jews, such as Foreign Minister Walter Rathenau. The Weimar constitution was even written by a Jew, Hugo Preuss. Jews drove the leftist and Marxist movements in Germany, which influenced, for example, such matters as art and architecture and even sexual behaviors. Weimar Germany's media was also largely in Jewish hands, as were her financial institutions - not surprising since Jews tend to dominate certain vocations in the Western countries.

Hitler Comes to Power/the Frankfurt School Comes to America

When Adolf Hitler assumed power in Germany in 1933, he set about correcting the problems which Germany faced. Among his actions were imprisoning Jewish revolutionaries and strengthening the German economy by the ingenious use of 'Mefo' bonds, which in a short time transformed Germany's economy into the most powerful in Europe. Indeed, Germany achieved full employment in four years under Hitler's rule. (It is important to contrast Hitler's quick and successful transformation of Germany's economy to American president F. D. Roosevelt's failed attempts to rescue America's economy from a severe depression. FDR's economic programs were largely 'artificial' in that the government, not private business, created jobs via large projects funded by U.S. tax dollars. In other words, tax dollars were used to pay taxpayers).

Coinciding with the rise of Nazism in Germany, an influential group of Jewish intellectuals fled Germany and came to America. This group, known as the Frankfurt School, injected Marxist ideas into American life via major U.S. universities. The Frankfurt School - consisting of Jews such as Theodor Adorno, Wilhelm Reich, Erich Fromm and Max Horkheimer - profoundly changed America's social fabric. Indeed, much of the social turmoil of the 1960s can be traced to the prior influence of those Frankfurt Jews.

The Beginnings of WWII/WWII/the Role of FDR's Jewish Cabal

In the early 1930s, certain Jews began to set the stage for WWII. In both Britain and America, Jews in important positions of power maneuvered to get the British and American governments to actively oppose Hitler's Germany. Furthermore, Jews themselves declared financial 'war' on Germany just after Hitler took power. Such a 'war' declaration occurred before Hitler had imprisoned the Jews or curtailed Jewish legal rights. In other words, Jews struck the first blow in their battle against Hitler's new regime.

It is important for the reader to understand that long before Hitler had imprisoned the Jews or invaded any country, American president Franklin D. Roosevelt officially recognized Germany's enemy, the communist Soviet Union (in November 1933) as a hedge against anti-communism in Europe. That the president of a free country would recognize a brutal communist state that had already murdered millions of people - a fact likely known to Roosevelt - is significant and offers insight into Roosevelt's administration. Some of the people surrounding Roosevelt were communists, for example U.S. Treasury official Harry Dexter White. Other Roosevelt staffers were, if not actual communists, then sympathetic towards communism, e.g. FDR's vice-president Henry Wallace. Roosevelt himself told Congressman Martin Dies that "several of the best friends I have got" were communists (noted in the U.S. Congressional Record, Sept. 22, 1950, page A6832).

More importantly, however, President Roosevelt's administration was literally filled with Jews - so much so that his famous 'New Deal' socioeconomic program was often referred to as the 'Jew Deal.' Ironically, a Jew - FDR staffer Samuel Rosenman - coined the term 'New Deal.' The Jews who aided Roosevelt's administration included Bernard Baruch, Felix Frankfurter, David Niles, Louis Brandeis, Henry Morgenthau Jr., Rabbi Stephen Wise and Sidney Hillman.

The Jews in Roosevelt's inner circle persuaded him to treat both Germany and Japan as dangerous enemies of America, which Roosevelt did. Concerning Britain, powerful Jews such as Bernard Baruch were key in convincing British government officials to also consider Germany and Japan to be their enemies. (Of note regarding England vis-a-vis Germany is that when Winston Churchill was in severe debt over gambling losses, he became indebted to Baruch since Baruch helped rescue him from bankruptcy [2]; the world will likely never know to what lengths Churchill was willing to go to return Baruch's favor. Furthermore, Churchill deeply disliked Germany, and possibly envied Hitler's success).

When President Roosevelt suggested in a speech in 1937 that America might have to wage war in the near future, watchful Americans knew that war with the future Axis powers - Germany, Japan and Italy - was imminent. Such an early suggestion of war - years before WWII began - gave good insight into Roosevelt's intentions.

Before WWII began, Jewish-dominated Hollywood played a crucial role in convincing American citizens that Hitler and the Germans were dangerous to America's safety. For example, Hollywood produced movies that portrayed the Germans as wanting to take over either America or the entire world. One such film was 'Confessions of a Nazi Spy,' starring Jewish actor Edward G. Robinson.

Jews were also key players in silencing people who opposed the growing anti-Germany movement in America. Prominent citizens who questioned the dangerousness of Germany to America were labeled "isolationists" and fiercely criticized. Those isolationists - such as famed aviator Charles Lindbergh - were unofficially blacklisted in America, their voices silenced by a concerted campaign funded largely by Jewish money. Jews funneled money into many anti-Germany organizations, such as the Fight For Freedom Committee, which received some winking support from Roosevelt's administration.

Also of note concerning the beginnings of WWII was Hitler's unique economy. Among other features, the German economy had a barter system that cut out the international Jewish bankers. An example of Hitler's barter system would be Germany trading trucks to Argentina in exchange for grain. Instead of both Germany and Argentina approaching international bankers for loans with high interest rates, both countries were, in effect, bypassing the international bankers by using barter exchange. Such exchanges angered the global financial community. As a result, economic warfare was directed against Germany by allied factions, since the international bankers feared that other countries might copy Germany's successful economic system.

The event that officially started WWII - Hitler's invasion of Poland - can be explained in the fact that Hitler was attempting to undo the heavy-handed Versailles Treaty. In fact, prior to invading Poland, Hitler asked Poland at least twice to return the city of Danzig and the Polish Corridor to Germany. Poland refused. Germany later invaded Poland in September 1939. Also of significance is that after Hitler invaded Poland, he offered to pull his troops out of that country if he could keep Danzig and the Corridor. Britain and France refused Hitler's offer. (Did they prefer war instead?)

Of further importance concerning WWII is the fact that Hitler probably did not realize how Jewish-influenced the British government was in 1939. Hitler likely thought that he was opposing only gentiles in England. What he probably did not realize about Britain was that, like most European governments, Britain was beholden to powerful Jews, and especially, was beholden to a degree not understood by the Nazi leadership. Those Jews not only aided the British government financially, but they also traveled in the highest social circles, having been named 'barons' and 'lords' long before. The Jews received those lofty titles not via their heritage but instead via their important financial services to the British government. In fact, ever since Oliver Cromwell allowed the Jews to return to England (they had been previously expelled from Britain), Jews had significantly influenced political and social events in England.

Furthermore, the popular idea that Britain and France had to guarantee Poland's borders by declaring war on Germany after Germany invaded Poland is interesting - and wrong. Days after Germany invaded Poland, the Soviets invaded as well, from the opposite side. Britain and France did not then declare war on the Soviet Union. Why did England and France allow the Soviets to invade Poland but not Germany? The 1939 Anglo-Polish treaty which led to WWII, and not the secret protocols of it, did not specify which countries Britain would defend Poland against. Additionally, that treaty - the Agreement of Mutual Assistance - was not properly ratified since it did not 'sit' for 21 days under the Ponsonby Rule, as was normally required under British policy. Translation: Britain's guaranteeing of Poland's borders was unlawful.

Most important of all, however, about WWII is that there is now clear evidence that certain powerful men had planned to remove Hitler from power long before he invaded Poland. As outlined in the book "Which Way Western Man?" by William G. Simpson, both Winston Churchill and various powerful Jews began making plans to topple Hitler as early as 1935, by using any means necessary. Among the proof of that claim is U.S. General Robert E. Wood's statement before a U.S. Congressional committee that Churchill told him in 1936 that England must "smash" Germany. That such a comment came 3 years before WWII began is of critical historical importance.

The Defeat of Germany/the Creation of the Morgenthau Plan

The defeat of Nazi Germany in 1945 was not simply a military victory for the allies. It amounted to the revenge of world Jewry. The biggest racial threat to the Jews in recent history - Nazi Germany - had not merely been defeated in war but had been virtually wiped off the map. Entire cities such as Dresden were burnt to the ground in the war. Millions of innocent German citizens were either killed, injured or left homeless. All traces of the former German culture were destroyed. People having no official role in the Nazi government were executed by the allies, such as Julius Streicher and Alfred Rosenberg. Other former Nazi officials were tried and hanged by the allies at Nuremberg using ex post facto laws, hearsay evidence, and confessions gained under torture administered by interrogators - who were often Jewish. Of significance is the fact that as early as December 1942 the allied powers had decided to prosecute German military personnel for war crimes committed during WWII.

Additionally, Roosevelt's August 1944 comment that the entire German people - not simply former Nazis - should be "castrated" to prevent them from reproducing is revealing of the Roosevelt administration's attitude towards Germany in general. U.S. General Dwight Eisenhower said that the top German officials should be punished beyond the death penalty, whatever that might have meant. Of possible interest regarding 'Ike's' comment is that Eisenhower's nickname at West Point military academy was 'The Swedish Jew.' Also, no castration suggestions were offered by allied leaders concerning the Japanese people, even though the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor caused America to enter WWII in the first place. Also of importance is the fact that two Jews - Henry Morgenthau, Jr. and the communist Harry Dexter White - wrote the U.S. government's Morgenthau Plan, which restructured post-war Germany to Jewish benefit. A greater example of a conflict of interest would be hard to find.

Also regarding the matter of post-war Germany, after the war the director general of the organization in charge of providing food and housing for homeless Germans (the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, or UNRRA) was a Jew, Herbert Lehman. UNRRA's chief advisor was also a Jew, David Weintraub.

Jews also played key roles in the prosecution of German military personnel for war crimes committed during WWII. For example, in the Malmedy massacre trial (U.S. vs. Valentin Bersin, et al.), the chief interrogator of the accused German soldiers was a Jew, William Perl. The chief prosecutor, Burton Ellis, was also a Jew. The chief assistant prosecutor was a Jew as well, Raphael Schumaker.

Jews were also key players in the U.S. Office of War Information (OWI), which created anti-Axis films, posters and photos for propaganda purposes. That propaganda was used to influence the attitudes of Western citizens towards Germany and Japan. Among the Jews who worked for OWI were James Paul Warburg, Bernard M. Baruch, Herbert Marcuse and Leo Rosten. Jews also helped 'de-Nazify' German military personnel and the German public after WWII, and conflicts of interests often occurred when that happened. For example, Jewish Marxist Herbert Marcuse a) advised the allies about how to portray German fascism to the Western public via mass media; and b) wrote a handbook for the allies concerning de-Nazification. The de-Nazification of Germany is so complete today that a German citizen risks a stiff jail sentence if he merely utters a pro-Nazi comment in public.

The Founding of the UN

Among the most important people involved in the founding of the United Nations in 1945 were Jewish communists, such as Victor Perlo, Harry Dexter White and Solomon Adler. The UN is a global entity of considerable power which has influenced the cultures of many Western countries. For example, in the late 1940s America adopted at least some educational ideas that were created by a UN department called UNESCO (i.e. those found in their 'Towards World Understanding' report). Those ideas concerned the content of textbooks in American schools. President Truman's Commission on Higher Education endorsed the ideas, which included teaching children about the benefits of “international government” (aka ‘surrendering much of your country’s autonomy to a global body’).

The controversial 1951 UN/UNESCO ‘Statement on the Nature of Race and Race Differences,’ which denied human racial differences and altered peoples’ attitudes about race, was largely the invention of infamous Jewish anthropologist Ashley Montagu. That statement seemed to further highlight the ongoing Jewish agenda on race. Another example of that agenda: as far back as 1935 Franz Boas - the Jewish godfather of race-denial who inspired Montagu’s efforts - approached two top scientists and asked them to create an anti-racism/race-denial statement, which would be signed by many other scientists and then publicized. Both of the scientists that Boas approached - anthropologist and psychologist Livingston Farrand and biologist Raymond Pearl - turned Boas down. Not one to give up easily, Boas then approached yet another race expert, anthropologist Earnest Hooton. Hooton agreed to create such a race statement (he sent it to seven top scientists but only one signed it).

Amazingly, the UNESCO race statement claimed that Jews are not a race or ethnic group - even though Jews contract ‘Jewish diseases,’ such as Tay-Sachs disease.

Other top experts who created race-denying/race-downplaying material for the UN or UNESCO were also Jewish, including Melville Herskovits, Otto Klineberg and Harry Shapiro. In fact, Jews virtually pioneered the questionable-but-now-common ‘official’ theory that racial differences between Whites and non-Whites do not really exist. The teachings of the Jews mentioned above were used to drastically alter Western culture, e.g. in arguing for the enactment of civil-rights legislation.

Despite the usual UN stance on Israel/Palestine, the UN has been good for Jews, i.e. the UN’s social leveling programs and equality-for-all ideology have drastically lessened ‘anti-Semitism’ worldwide.

The Control of Eastern Europe After WWII

Not only was Russia controlled by Jews for many years, but countries in post-war Eastern Europe were as well. For example, communist Poland was run by Jewish figures including Jacob Berman, Boleslaw Bierut and Colonel Jozef Rozanski. Communist Romania was run by people such as Ana Pauker, Avram Bunaciu and Valter Roman. Hungary’s communist government was also heavily Jewish, for example Mathias Rakosi, Ernest Gero and Michael Farkas. Under the leadership of those Jews, hundreds of thousands of people - most of them gentiles - were murdered, tortured or imprisoned throughout Eastern Europe.

The House Un-American Activities Committee (HUAC) Investigations

In 1947 the U.S. Congress, via the House Un-American Activities Committee (HUAC), began investigating the Hollywood film industry due to charges that Hollywood had been infiltrated by communism (it had been). A large number of actors, directors and screenwriters were members of the Communist Party and as such were getting marching orders from the Soviet Union. During that period, a group of people known as the Hollywood Ten refused to answer questions before the HUAC committee. They were then charged with contempt of Congress. A disproportionate number of the Hollywood Ten were Jewish, such as Herbert Biberman, Samuel Ornitz, Ring Lardner, Jr. and Albert Maltz, as were the people who were ‘blacklisted’ during that era. (A blacklisting meant that a person could not work in Hollywood due to his political activities).

Of important note concerning HUAC was how that committee - and the similar McCarthy committee later on - was portrayed by the media and Hollywood. HUAC’s mission - identifying people who were attempting to communize America on behalf of the Soviet Union - was described as an un-American ‘witch hunt.’ Declassified U.S. and Soviet government reports - such as the Venona Intercepts - show that those ‘witch hunters’ were correct: communists had infiltrated many areas of American society.

Significantly, the majority of American communist leaders have been Jewish, such as Herbert Aptheker, Victor Perlo, Jay Lovestone and Benjamin Gitlow.

The Founding of Israel

Immense and concerted pressure was placed upon U.S. President Harry Truman so that he would endorse the idea of creating a Jewish state in Palestine. Naturally, most of that pressure came from Jews. Indeed, at one point Jewish Congressman Emanuel Celler led a group of Jews to the White House. There, during a conversation with Truman, Celler pounded on the president's desk and said that if Truman did not give his blessing for a Jewish nation, "we'll run you out of town." In fact, Truman said that "extreme Zionists" had threatened him. Also of note is the fact that Truman's Jewish friend Eddie Jacobson contacted Truman to urge him to support a Jewish state. But before Jacobson contacted Truman, Jacobson was briefed on Palestinian matters by Dewey Stone, a Zionist leader (which might make one wonder how Jacobson came to contact Truman and on who's behalf he might have been acting).

Today, the Zionist lobby in Washington, D.C. wields enormous power over Congress. As a result, Congressmen dare not criticize Israel in public; those who do are usually not re-elected. Another result of Zionist power in Washington is the ever-increasing funding of the state of Israel by U.S. taxpayers.

Of further relevance regarding Israel is the question of Israel's legitimacy as a state. If the Jews were allowed to 'return' to land which they occupied long ago in Palestine, do the American Indians also have the right to 'return' to areas which they once inhabited, e.g. the middle American states?

The Cold War

The 'cold' war between America and the Soviet Union - which began just after WWII and which was centered around both countries' nuclear arsenals - became more sophisticated and more expensive as America entered the 1950s. Billions of U.S. tax dollars were spent on atomic weapons and various security features both inside and outside of the U.S.

Of importance is the fact that the Cold War would never have occurred in the first place if Jews hadn't created the Soviet Union. Ironically, Jews a) were prime figures in creating America's first atomic weapons program, called 'The Manhattan Project'; and b) were also key players in networks which secretly provided U.S. atomic weapons technology to the Soviet Union, e.g. the Rosenbergs, Harry Gold and Robert Soblen. (For more information on the transfer of atomic secrets to the Soviet Union, see the Fuchs-Gold or the Rosenberg spy ring cases in American historical documents).

The U.S. Civil-Rights Movement

The history of the 1950s-1960s civil-rights movement might go unnoticed by many White citizens if it were not for the fact that that movement was created and steered by Jews, not by Blacks. Indeed, the NAACP was founded by and run for many years by Jews, such as the Spingarn brothers. Other important Jews in the NAACP included Henry Moskowitz, Lillian Wald, Jack Greenberg and Kivie Kaplan.

The groundbreaking Brown v. Board of Education court ruling in 1954 resulted almost entirely from the work of Jewish lawyers and activists connected with the NAACP, for example Jack Greenberg. Indeed, the legal brief for the Brown case was signed almost exclusively by Jews. Jewish activist Esther Swirk Brown was also a prime player in the Brown case. In fact, Swirk Brown actually launched the Brown case herself [3].

Furthermore, the constitutionally questionable U.S. Civil Rights Act of 1964 came from a Jew, i.e. Congressman E. Celler's (see elsewhere) House bill H.R. 7152. That act created, among other things, affirmative action. It ended the practice of business owners deciding for themselves whom to hire and fire. In fact, the destruction of White rights in America was caused largely by the Jewish-created/led civil-rights movement.

(Of possible interest to the reader is that the Civil Rights Act of 1964 created the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC), which is responsible for ensuring that private employers obey the racial mandates of Title VII of the Act. Perhaps not surprisingly, two Jews, Alfred and Ruth Blumrosen, were key players in the construction of the EEOC, and Alfred was also the commission's first compliance chief (and is also referred to as its conciliations chief). Mr. Blumrosen shaped the racial quota guidelines that the EEOC would follow for decades to come. In fact, Blumrosen could be considered to be the godfather of racial quotas in America - at least as far as federal enforcement of racial quotas in employment is concerned [4]. Furthermore, Sonia Pressman, a Jewish EEOC attorney, was a prime figure in the movement to extend the EEOC's reach to include gender-discrimination-in-employment into its legal jurisdiction. Pressman worked with NOW - a feminist group that contained many Jews - in an attempt to force the EEOC to become more involved with gender bias matters).

The civil-rights movement also transformed the attitudes of American Blacks: before the civil-rights movement Blacks were largely respectful of Whites. Today Blacks openly denigrate White culture and challenge White authority. They demand that 'whitey' now show them respect which they may or may not have earned.

The Vatican's 1965 'Nostra Aetate' Declaration

As Look magazine noted in January 1966, in an article titled "How The Jews Changed Catholic Thinking," a Jew named Jules Isaac approached the Vatican about a possible Catholic condemnation of 'anti-Semitism.' His action resulted in the famous, official Vatican ruling that the Jews were not responsible for Jesus Christ's death. The ruling was a very significant victory for all Jews worldwide. Of importance is that after the Vatican statement was issued, Jews did not then issue a similar declaration admitting to and condemning Judaism's historic and harsh anti-gentile attitudes - attitudes which pre-date Christianity.

U.S. Immigration Law Altered

Jews have also led the movement in the U.S. Congress to open America to non-European immigration. The best example of that is the 1965 Immigration Act, aka the Hart-Celler Act, which resulted in a revolutionary change in U.S. immigration rules. Congressman Celler was the point man for that law, even though he is listed second, after Hart, in the title 'Hart-Celler.' Indeed, President Johnson mentioned Celler twice at the signing of the bill - H.R. 2580 - into law on Oct. 3, 1965 but did not mention Hart. Other Jews in Congress also spearheaded the movement to allow more non-Europeans into America, such as Jacob Javits and Herbert Lehman. And, an influential Jewish immigration lawyer named Edward Dubroff regularly advised Congressman Celler about immigration issues.

Additionally, powerful Jewish organizations carried out intense, ongoing campaigns in order to pressure individual Congressmen to vote for the loosening of U.S. immigration laws. At nearly every step of the campaign to alter U.S. immigration rules, Jews were at the forefront.

The Rise of American Leftism and Counterculture

Not surprisingly, the American political Left was built largely by Jews as well. For example, Frankfurt School icon Herbert Marcuse laid the foundation for the American 'hippie' counterculture via his popular book "One-Dimensional Man" (1964). Other famous Jews who led the 1960s hippie movement included Abbie Hoffman, Jerry Rubin and Paul Krassner. Lesser Jews drove the counterculture movement behind-the-scenes by publishing, writing for or editing leftist newspapers and magazines. And anti-war/college activism groups were disproportionately filled with Jews, too, e.g. Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), whose top leaders were Jewish, for example Todd Gitlin, Mike Spiegel, Al Haber, and Mike Klonsky.

Similarly, most of the leaders of the feminist movement were also Jews, for example Betty Friedan, Letty Cottin Pogrebin, Lucy Komisar and Gloria Steinem. Most of the leaders of the homosexual-rights movement have been Jewish, too, such as Larry Kramer, Alan Klein and Arnie Kantrowitz. Gun-control actions in the U.S. Congress have also been dominated by Jews, such as Charles Schumer, Diane Feinstein and Howard Metzenbaum. Indeed, Jews created two landmark anti-gun laws in the 1990s: the Brady law, which came from Howard Metzenbaum and Charles Schumer, and the assault-rifle-ban law, which came from Dianne Feinstein and Schumer. In fact, America's first significant anti-gun legislation, the Gun Control Act of 1968, came from Congressman Celler's House bill H.R. 17735.

Even the famous Woodstock rock-and-roll concert in 1969 - which was a noteworthy counterculture event - was created by Jews: Michael Lang, Artie Kornfeld, Joel Rosenman and John Roberts.

Jews guided almost every step of the American counterculture movement.

The Growth of Hollywood/the U.S. Media

Of tremendous importance to America's culture is that the Hollywood film community, and the American media as well, are dominated by Jews. In fact, Jews founded the major Hollywood movie studios, e.g. Carl Laemmle (Universal Pictures), William Fox (Fox Film Corp.), Louis B. Mayer (Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer) and Adolph Zukor (Paramount Pictures).

Some of the more well-known Jews in modern Hollywood and the media include film directors Steven Spielberg and Woody Allen, the Disney Co.'s Michael Eisner, actors Dustin Hoffman and Kirk Douglas, comedians Milton Berle and Don Rickles and news journalists Mike Wallace, Barbara Walters and Ted Koppel (more information about Jews, Hollywood and the media can be found in the essay "Who Rules America?" by National Vanguard Books, available on the web or in their book catalogue).

Indeed, as the 1960s hippie revolution was occurring, another revolution of sorts was happening in Hollywood. Jewish network executives began to churn out movies and TV shows featuring Black actors in leading roles. Hollywood also produced a notorious movie that featured an interracial relationship, which was still taboo at the time. It is apparent that the Jews in Hollywood, believing that the pro-White attitudes of America's Founders would never return, became much bolder during the 1960s. (Regarding the Founders' attitudes about race, a law created in the Founders' era, 'Act of March 26, 1790 (1 Stat 103-104),' stated that only Whites could become American citizens. In fact, non-Whites had no significant rights in America until the XV Amendment was created in 1870).

As America entered the 1970s it became common for White Americans to see Blacks, Jews and even Asians in prominent vocations on TV shows and in movies. Those minorities were seen portraying judges, police detectives and attorneys across large and small screens all over the U.S.

Non-Hollywood media also flourished in America from the 1960s onward. The news departments at most broadcasting companies were run by, or heavily staffed by, Jews. Major U.S. newspapers also came under Jewish control as small newspapers were bought out by big media conglomerates which were dominated by Jews. Furthermore, as American culture was being socially 'Jewified,' so were the cultures of other Western countries being similarly Jewified via American movies and TV shows, which became popular in many countries. America served as a base of sorts for the exporting of Jewish-created movies and TV shows which featured leftist and politically-correct messages, which served various Jewish social objectives.

The Rise of Big Capitalism

Capitalism may be 'all-American,' but the type of colossal capitalism which bankrupts family-owned retail stores is not. Big capitalism drives corner grocers out of business and outsources jobs to third-world countries. It encourages materialism. And it leads to the importing of inexpensive goods in massive quantities, which also causes American jobs to vanish.

Even though Jews are known for their leftist behavior, they nonetheless pioneered giant capitalism and corporatism. Jews especially pioneered conglomerates, in which one large company owns a dozen smaller companies (for a good example of conglomerates, see the essay "Who Rules America?" by National Vanguard Books, mentioned above).

Summary

The information above shows that the impact that Jews have had upon the world - and especially upon the West - during the past 200 years is remarkable. Important questions arise from the impact of the Jews: without their actions, would WWII have occurred? Would America have had a 50-year Cold War with the Soviet Union? Would the Soviet Union have even existed in the first place? Would the Vietnam War have occurred? Would America be as politically liberal as it is today? Would America have been involved in wars in the Middle East? Those are questions for Westerners to ponder at length.

Even more remarkable is how the Western public never hears about the influence of the Jews upon their cultures. Words such as 'leftist' or 'socialist' are used to describe Jewish social activists in the West but never the word 'Jew.' We suggest that that lack of mention of the Jews in Western societies is itself mute testimony to their tremendous power. By using a) frequent mentions of the Holocaust; b) the media; c) Hollywood; d) large amounts of money; and e) significant political influence, Jews have rebuilt the West to their ends. Gentiles who complain about that Jewish rebuilding - and their own dispossession as a result of it - are labeled 'anti-Semitic' and marginalized into ineffectiveness. Such Jewish behavior as outlined above is, again, not a plot by Jews but is instead inborn, proactive behavior by them, which supposedly helps to offset the chance that Jews will be oppressed yet again, or, will be again expelled from Western countries (Jews have been expelled from most Western countries at one time or another).

Finally, it is interesting to note how quickly Jews accomplished the rebuilding of America, the Western powerbase of the Jews: in roughly 50 years. Before President Roosevelt took office in 1933 Jews had little influence upon American culture on the whole. But by 1983 Jews dominated American culture via television, movies, newspapers, magazines and other cultural organs. That a people who comprise just 2.5% of the U.S. population could significantly alter the culture of the most powerful country in the world in such a short time is very significant.

[1] Jews are both a hybrid race/ethnic group and a religion; they are highly intelligent and are, historically speaking, inbred; such inbreeding causes group-like thinking as a rule. Jews contract more diseases unique to Jews than any other ethnic group, suggesting that they are the most inbred of humans.
